Cambridge, UK, 14th September 2009: Cambridge Regulatory Services (CambReg) is pleased to announce the formation of a strategic alliance with SIRO Clinpharm, a leading global Indian based Clinical Research Organisation. The new alliance will provide benefits to pharma companies in both Asia and Europe. CambReg's regulatory expertise, coupled with SIRO's abilities to conduct fast paced trials, will provide clients with a one-stop, cost effective solution for all their registration needs.

"Having come highly recommended to CambReg by the Mumbai High Commission, we are extremely pleased to be endorsing this alliance with SIRO today," commented Karen James, Managing Director of Cambridge Regulatory Services. "This partnership will provide European pharma companies with increased confidence in accessing cost effective clinical trial solutions, hence introducing new clients to SIRO. In return SIRO will have the benefit of offering regulatory expertise through CamReg."

"Our alliance with CambReg would go a long way in helping small and mid-sized companies cut through the regulatory maze in Europe" said Dr Chetan Tamhankar, Chief Operating Officer of SIRO Clinpharm. "This alliance builds on the strength of our European clinical trial operations and allows us to offer greater value to our clients." he added.

PRESS RELEASE

The new alliance will offer full regulatory services to pharma companies wishing to register human medicines, including new small molecule or biotech entities, Biologics, Herbals and Generics. Services include preparing Clinical Trial Applications, Marketing Authorisation Applications in eCTD format, specialist Paediatric Investigation Plans and Paediatric Use Marketing Authorisations, as well as managing Decentralised and Mutual Recognition Procedures across the whole of the European Union.
